NOTES

PRINCIPLES and EXAMPLES

NOTE 1

General Principles

1. Eligibility. Section 3.1(b)(ii) allows an underage player to play in age groups that are two years above their age without dispensation. For example, a player who is 9 (turning 10 in the playing year) may play Under 10, Under 11 and Under 12 grades.
2. Player Wellbeing. Priority must be given to the player's wellbeing. Where a player seeks to play in a grade that is three or more years ahead of their age, an appropriate process must be adopted to evaluate the player's capabilities to play in a significantly higher age level, including establishing there are exceptional and compelling circumstances to support this, as well as obtaining parental consent.
3. Participation. A player seeking to play under these provisions should not displace a player who is age-eligible and available to play in that grade. For example, an available Under 16 player should not be 'dropped' from the Under 16 team to allow selection of an Under 13 player.
Exceptions to this are:
 - if the applicant player has no other reasonable & readily available age-eligible playing options; or
 - the player is seeking to play in a Senior competition
4. Participation. In allowing the player to play up, there should be no significant adverse participation impact on the player's usual age level team. For example, where allowing a player to play up results in their usual age level team forfeiting a match due to insufficient numbers.
5. Child Safeguarding. Regard must be had for Child safeguarding provisions under the Handbook and under relevant laws, particularly where an underage player is seeking to play in a Senior grade.

NOTE 2

Exceptional & Compelling Circumstances

Exceptional and Compelling Circumstances refers to the applicant player's circumstances, not those of the team or club. Both 'exceptional' and 'compelling' circumstances must be met.

Exceptional. Regular definitions of exceptional include "much greater than usual", "to an unusually high degree" or "unusual and infrequent". Therefore, a circumstance must be more than "unusual".

Compelling. Regular definitions of compelling include "strong and convincing" and "forceful and persuasive".

Relevant Attributes. In assessing whether there are exceptional and compelling circumstances, the Controlling Body must also have regard for evidence that the player:

- is physically capable of playing in the higher level
- has the skills and understanding of the game to play at the higher level
- has experience in playing AFL or another relevant (e.g. contact) sport
- has the social maturity to behave and interact appropriately with players and officials in that higher grade

The presence of these attributes does not, of itself, mean the application meets exceptional and compelling circumstances.

NOTE 3

Examples

These are examples only. A Controlling Body is not limited to these examples in assessing whether there are exceptional and compelling circumstances.

Participation. For example, if a competition does not provide an age-eligible grade such that playing in a higher age group is the only viable option the player has to participate. This should consider any other reasonable & readily accessible option for the player in the competition or in a neighbouring competition.

Development Interests. For example, a player listed in a Talent League Club or Academy where that Club or Academy has requested the player to play at a higher level for development reasons (and that there is evidence of this).

Risk. For example, a player who is significantly more physically developed than others in their age-eligible grade and whose physicality presents an abnormal risk to others in that grade.

NOTE 4

Approval

Conditions of Approval. In approving an Application, the Controlling Body may impose any conditions that it considers are appropriate, including limiting the number of matches the Player can play in the higher grade. Any breach of such conditions:

- (i) may result in immediate revocation of approval to play up;
- (ii) may result in the Player being deemed an ineligible player; and
- (iii) may be dealt with as a breach of policy under the Handbook or Controlling Body Rules.
